

I would not be in favor of this proposal. There needs to be several classes so that people interested in electronics have some goals to achieve. The top class needs to be challenging enough to keep a new ham interested in amateur radio.